

WOMEN, SAVING AND SUPERANNUATION

In this research S4W will focus on saving and superannuation issues for women of all ages and undertake specific policy analysis so that relevant policy recommendations and directions for action can be developed to effect positive changes for women.

S4W will use this project to:

- raise individual, community, superannuation industry and government awareness about the factors affecting women's ability to save and plan for retirement, and advise in the development of policy and programmes,
- contribute to national policy reform agendas relevant to economic well-being for women in the area of superannuation and retirement incomes
- enhance and improve results for women where need is indicated through survey and consultation with Australian women, other relevant bodies, organisations and departments

This is an integrated project that identifies priority areas and accommodates the diversity of perspectives and needs of 'women', rather than generalising across the broad category 'woman'.
